Start

1. Game objective

The goal of the game is to explore how various technologies will impact the future of leadership. To do so, you will make collective decisions within a future scenario shaped by uncertainty and the influence of diverse technologies.

The game aims to foster a nuanced understanding of how responsibility and control evolve in specific contexts, while heightening your sensitivity to ethical, cultural, and strategic questions.

2. Scenario

Play the audio recording of the selected scenario. It describes the environment in which your game takes place. Afterwards, take a moment to fully immerse yourself mentally in the scenario.

After that, briefly discuss within the group which aspects you perceived as particularly relevant. The goal is for that participants develop a shared understanding of the scenario.

3. Context

Your group forms an assembly of executives within the described scenario. Your superior expects you to reach a shared consensus on several strategic questions related to a new technology that will enhance your scenario.

On the second part of the canvas, you document your decisions, which you will present to your superior (= the other teams) at the end of the group reflection.

First, together as a group, define the key characteristics of either your own organization or one selected at random for the game. (max. 3 min.)

1. Type of Organization:

2. Goal of the Organization:

4. Roles

Throughout the game, you will embody the actual role you currently hold within your organization. Please reveal your name tags and write down your name as well as your job title. On the back, you will find a brief summary of the scenario along with questions from your supervisor to be discussed as the game progresses. In addition, you have a self-reflection sheet in front of you. These questions are designed to help you clarify your priorities and your mindset before the upcoming discussion begins.

Your task now is to influence the discussion as effectively as possible from the perspective of your role.

Please take a moment for self-reflection and briefly introduce yourself to the group if you do not already know the others at your table. (max. 5 min.)
